

Warrior - be the sovereign Being as your Higher Mind decrees.

Your next step:

To decide whether to Be or not to Be; this is your question. Are you congruently walking your Inspiration? Is this 'walk' based on your intelligent questing, your discovery of who and what you REALLY are? Or based on what you have been taught?

When you discover the only one with Authority over you is your Consciousness, conscience, sovereign Self - is it worth 'standing your ground' for? You could do nothing, giving your power to someone or something you perceive to be greater than your Self and hope to live in the promised peace and harmony this apparently grants you. But this is living in apathy. What is important to you? Your right to Be your sovereign Self? Your right to free passage; for your body to travel freely? Your right to free expression? Don't be tricked into thinking these are privileges ... these are your rights according to natural lore. The lore that states 'do no harm'. But you may need to protect these rights, would you be prepared to stand your ground to do so?

It is your right to choose to Be, or not to be a sovereign Being.

Marianne Thorne

CreativeGoalSetting.com