

Breakthrough – the comprehension that you have already provided yourself with the prosperity and abundance required for the achievement of your goals; all you need to do is get started.

Your next step:

Is to do your constructive action NOW. What is the action you need to do NOW to activate further abundance and prosperity? Is there something you have been procrastinating about ... putting it off until circumstances are more favourable? until the resources are available ...

This is that breakthrough moment when you realise the resources ARE already available for your next step, but only when you actually DO the action of the next step. That life works like a mortgagor providing a series of progress payments paid on completion of each stage of construction. That further thinking about it won't help and that 'over-thinking' actually causes hindrance. It is time to reduce your plan to 'baby steps', to bite size chunks ... I always loved the riddle: How do you eat an elephant? Answer: One bite at a time!

Use how/what questions to discover what you can do today to make progress toward your goal, to materialise what you are dreaming of.
